GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO THE LIBRARY.

The library of manuscripts attached to the Govt. Museum, Alwar, contains a great many useful and a number of rare and unique books. Originally the library, belonged to the Alwar State, which came into existance in the first quarter of the 19th century. At that time the Mughal Empire was fast declining and after some time the Delhi Empire was extinguished. Delhi presented a spectacle of disaster and calamities for some time and nobility as well as men of letters of there sought refuge under the roofs of the adjoining States. Those who happened to come to Alwar, might have presented these literary and artistic gems (manuscripts) tempted by the benevolence and munificence of the rulers. The Maharajas were the scholars and true admirers of rare books, who also got many books copied under their own supervision so much so that a copy of Gulistan was prepared on silver sheets with gold letters at the cost of more than a lac of rupees. The other notable book is 'Haft Band' carved on ivory by Hafiz Norullah of Lucknow.

Thus, the Maharajas of Alwar by procuring rare and valuable manuscripts enriched the library with the praiseworthy fine collections on multifarious branches of human knowledge. It can, therefore, be safely said that the Alwar State, possessed so many manuscripts owing to the love for books and patronage offered to the men of letters, learning and fine arts of Calligraphy and painting more than any other State of Rajputana except Tonk, where there is also a beautiful collection of more than 3,000 manuscripts in Arabic, Persian and Urdu, known as Saeedia Library.
